Form 990 - Organization's Mission

CURE protects and restores resilient towns and landscapes by harnessing the power of people who care about them.

We do this because we believe that robust human communities can only be sustained by healthy ecosystems, and robust natural environments can only be regained through vigorous stewardship.

Our work takes many forms, but always involves three core practices:

Awakening people's bonds with the natural world around them.

Inclusively and strategically exploring issues and actions.

Systematically building communities of change at critical intersections of ecological and social well-being.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a - First Accomplishment

CURE's Energy Democracy Program is uniquely focused on strategies to impact climate, energy, and environmental justice decisions affecting rural residents. Energy Democracy is about building power to address linkages between environmental challenges, inequities, and other systemic challenges facing our communities.

You cannot talk about Energy Democracy in rural communities without talking about Rural Electric Co-ops. One in three Minnesotans gets their electricity from a Rural Electric Co-op (REC). RECs are democratically owned and operated utilities that were created during the New Deal to electrify rural America. However, the operations of Minnesota's RECs today lack transparency and good governance.

CURE is a national leader in the REC reform movement. In service to aligning the priorities of Minnesota's REC's to their cooperative founding principles, CURE has organized member-owners to change REC priorities: grow transparency in REC governance, build grassroots power, and fight against the REC's reliance on dirty electricity from coal instead transitioning their electricity generation to renewable, community-based energy sources that would be cheaper for their member-owners and be a source of rural economic growth.

CURE's Energy Democracy Program is helping deliver clean electricity, energy efficiency, climate justice, and economic justice to rural communities and positive climate and energy impacts to all Minnesotans.

Energy Democracy is:

Clean - Energy produced without the release of greenhouse gases, for example, wind and solar power.

Local - Energy produced and owned in our communities and by our neighbors.

Democratic - Community having a voice and power in the decision-making about our energy future.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c - Third Accomplishment

CURE believes that our environmental goals around water and climate will only be met if we have the support of an engaged, networked, and capable base of grassroots citizen advocates.

We know that water is precious and is often exploited for personal gain. Our groundwater and our lakes, rivers, and wetlands are all under threat. At CURE, we have system-mapped water issues in Minnesota. This complex analysis made clear that the only way to have meaningful and sustainable change is to address operational values and behaviors.

CURE believes the future of our water and other natural resources depends on progressive policies and grassroots engagement. We know that one of the best ways to make this change is with the creation and implementation of a Water Ethic Charter (WEC). A WEC helps ensure that ethical decisions are being made in the best interest of all Minnesotans-now and for future generations.

Getting people connected with nature is often our first point for engagement. Connecting People with Nature is a fun way to bring like-minded people together and introduce them to our organization. For example, CURE has partnered with Land Stewardship Project and Minnesota State Agencies for three successful Tallgrass Prairie BioBlitz events. Participants learned about plants, animals, geology, and land management practices that impact our most endangered ecosystem.

An annual conflicts of interest disclosure statement is to be filled out by employees and board members. Form 990, Part VI, Line 15a - Compensation Process for Top Official
